

HUNTING - TE ANAU - NEW ZEALAND

THAR (Alpine goat from Himalaya) Thar are the most highly sought after trophy in New Zealand as there is an incredible amount of skill required to locate and hunt these top trophy game animals which are found in the alpine area of the Southern Alps. Thar tend to prefer high altitude areas amongst ice and snow and live in large family groups made up of young bulls, nannies and kids.

CHAMOIS (Austrian Alpine Antelope) Chamois also live in the alpine areas though at a lower altitude than thar. Chamois and thar are seldom found together with chamois preferring the open grass lands and thar staying close to large steep bluffs where they retreat when sensing danger.

The distribution of chamois throughout the South Island is far wider than that of thar and they tend to be more mobile living together in small family groups.
